COMMENT OF THE DAY

THE heavy pressure maintained by does not diminish talk of the likelihood of a stalemate. Nor does it quell vague hints of Anglo-American parleys envisaging a new peace move, and banking on heavy Chinese Communist losses as a persuasive factor.

Nevertheless, so far, there appears to be little foundation for either the talk or the hints. The Chinese have undoubtedly suffered a serious defeat and the morale of their front-line troops has been sharply shaken. But resistance is stiffening at several points and on the evidence there is no reason to suppose otherwise than that the Communists still have plenty of man-power at their disposal. Nearly a year since the original aggression by the North Korean army, the war goes on. The time, in fact, has come to try and assess what has been accomplished by the conflict and where it has led. At first sight it looks like one of the most aimless conflicts in history.

It has no plainly demonstrable significance. Korea is one of those odd.

undistinguished corners of the globe lacking entirely in strategic value where one would have thought the people could have lived in peace. Yet in 12 months this pathetic peninsula has been ravaged, its cities shattered and much of its population made homeless. The men of sixteen nations have fought in an unceasing struggle. Families thousands of miles away who probably had never previously heard of the existence of Korea, have been bereaved. And for what? Today the United Nations forces are back again in the area where hostillties beganabout the 88th Parallel. Korea is still divided into two. The object of both sides is still to make it one, either by force, or by imposing the conditions necessary to give the people of the country a free choice. Has all the pain and suffering, then, been use-

1945, the free nations have combined to resist an act of unprovoked aggression from Communism — and that is of enormous significance. The first occasion was when the Russians tried to make Anglo-American-French hold on Berlin untenable. Had that not been frustrated by the Anglo-American airlift Western Europe might now have been Communist. Similarly, had the United Nations allowed Korea to go by default, the Communist menace to the rest of South-East Asia would have immensely boosted. Most of the peoples on the borders of China would have been prepared to bow the knee to Moscow. Having twice received sharp rebuff, Kremlin leaders may pause before again throwing themselves out on a limb. Forgetting the Wedemeyers and MacArthurs, world sacrifices in Korea may have prevented World War III. The struggle is far from over, but there can be little doubt of the outcome. If the Chinese launch 'new attacks from behind the Iron Curtain, they will only batter their heads against an Iron Wall. They do no more today, they who boasted they would throw the UN army into the sea, than lose face and all else while getting nowhere. Once again boldness is reaping its reward. When nations stand firm they are half-way to victory. When they appease or lose grip they are near to defeat. Another good result is the evidence that in spite of early misunderstandings, Britain and America are again drawing closer together. The British case on Hongkong and Malaya is better understood in the United States. A new trend in American public opinion was guided by the stand made, by the glorious Gloucesters. Not for the first time the British fighting man—in Korea as elsewhere—has proved to be Britain's less?...The answer is an emphatic most offective Ambassador.

The magnificent stand of the 1st Battalion the Gloudestershire Regiment on the Imjin River in Korea in April has been acclaimed; all over the world as one of the finest and bravest actions fought by the United Nations forces in the campaign. The words of Brigadier Thomas Brodie, Commander of the British 29th Brigade,-"Only the Gloucesters could have done it"-are a worthy tribute to those who took part in the fierce five-day engagement against tremendous odds.

A Service of Commemoration and Intercession for the Battalion is to be held in Gloucester Cathedral on Monday, and will be heard over Radio Hongkong as a direct relay from the BBC at 7.30 p.m. Hongkong Summer time the same evening.

Those who heard the recital given by that talented young pianist, Miss Beulah Kwok, during April this year will be interested to note that she will broadcast another recital on Tuesday at 9.11 p.m. This time it will be an all Bach programme. Miss Kwok will play Three Inventions-No. 13 in A Major, No. 8 in F Major, and No. 14 in B Flat Major, Prelude and Fugue No. 10 in E Minor, and French Suite in E Major.

For generations "The Swiss Family Robinson" has been at once the butt of paradists and one of the most universally loved books from childhood onwards -and now the BBC presents a radio version of the adventures of the resourceful Robinsons on that fabulous isle where the kindly fruits of the earth burgeon, regardless of latitude, in and out of season, and where, if the lion does not lie down with the lamb, at least the penguin parades with the flamingo.

John Keir Cross has reconstructed the story of the Robinson Family as a four-episode serial, with Eric Portman playing the part of Father Robinson, and the first part may be heard by listeners to Radio Hongkong tonight at 9.15 p.m.

On Monday at 9.11 p.m. Radio Hongkong is repeating the feature called "A Star Danced"-The Story of Gertrude Lawrence. This is in response to a number of requests from listeners who missed a portion of the feature as a result of an unavoidable. break in transmission at the time when the programme was last broadcast.

The Second Test Match between England and South Africa begins at Lord's on Thursday, and a commentary on a portion of the play will be relayed from the BBG direct on Thursday and Saturday evenings from 9.15 to 9.30. On Friday a description of play, recorded earlier in the evening, may be heard from 10.15, to 10.30 p.m.

FIERCE OPPONENTS when they meet in competition, Gerry Murray (left) and Toughie Brasuhn are just like other mothers as they prepare to give sons, Mike and Billy, lessons.

BEDTIME for Mike means a story before he falls asleep probably to dream that he is speeding around a track, single handedly crushing all opposition as his mom applauds.

MOM'S SKATES are all that matter to Mike as family packs and prepares to leave on a jour. The Gammans always travel in their own car so they can do some sightesseles.

GETTING away for a good start, Mike and Billy receive a helping hand from their mothers as they learn "takeoff" technique.

A NEW Hamleld and McCov foud appears to be in the making

A NEW Hatsleld and McCoy seud appears to be in the making. Whizzing around the banked Roller Derby track in New York these days, practising blocks and jams, are two fighting youngsters of battling families. They are little Billy Monte, 5, and speedy Mike Gammon, 7. Their mothers are Gerry Tylorys n Cammon and Toughle Brasuhn Monte, who nightly thrill speed tators with their rough-and-tumble bouts. Both fathers also are top flight skating stars.

Living up to his parents' expectations, Mike has been clocked around the oval in 12.5 seconds. Average skater's time is 12 seconds.

Besides being an exceptional skater, Mike is a natural athlete, excelling in baseball and swimming. But his first love is the banked boards, where he can square off with Billy and others.

Although mother is a 125-pound flash of dynamice on the track, she's just a homemaker when she's out of the spotlight. "Home" is a hotel room at present, for schedules keep them constantly on the go. However, she still finds time to mend the family's clothes and teach her boy how to skate.

Veteran skating couples like the Montes and the Gammons are well paid now that the sport has really caught on. They usually average as much as $20,000 a year. This sum is a far cry from the pin money they earned 12 years ago when Gerry Murray joined one of two teams, fighting not only on the track but against a rising cost of living, day after day, as the Roller Derby jumped from city to city.

PRACTISING MAYHEM on wheels, Gerry and Toughle bat tle for the advantage as they flash around a turn, each seeking to spill the other and lead the pack for try at points.

DERBY STARS must be a combination of speed, figure and trick skators. They and leap over spilled teammus and opposionts. After alectaing it is never to have to be able to maintain their balance, under the most trying conditions, and any to be able to maintain their balance, under the most trying conditions, and the conditions of the most trying conditions.

fashion year. The aim of clothes this country is producing for the export market. 🗼 Already, in the first few days, buyers have been caught up in such a whirl of shows and receptions that there is only time at the end of one show to think how to get to the next. A number of the shows are being. held, in spacious, well-lit, ballfrocms of several of London's exclusive hotels. These are a welcome change from the crowded, postage-stamp, size DRITISH women who envy French women their high D fashioned Paris models, and Americans their "cute little dresses," will be surprised to know that British Utility clothes, especially coats and suits, are very much envied by French visitors.

FEW FRENCH WOMEN can efford the high prices charged by the model houses in Paris. The clothes in the shops are also expensive, so most of them have their clothes made by "a little woman round the corner."

AMERICAN CLOTHES are cheaper, but they are thrown together and don't wear. So Americans in London are buying British Utility tailored suits and classic coats.

FRENCH WOMEN, from the fashion centre of the world, are delighted with the more "dressy" suits. The only criticism I have heard is the dreary name given to them. (Whoever was responsible for the name "Utility"?)

Perfume Do's And Dont's

The "wearing of perfume brings out as many differences in women as the choice of it. Many have their pet ideas. Some pour a few drops on the brasslere, others touch the hems of their frocks, especially if they are going to dine and dance. Then there is the behind-the-ear addict. In some places in Europe where gallant gentlemen kiss a lady's hand it is a custom to friction it into the backs of the fingers.

Never put perfume on your hair unless the silky mop has just been shampooed because the glandular exudations of the scalp will change its character. "Will the scent last, will it stay with me?" is the frequent inquiry heard by the salesgirl at the perfume counter. That is not the point. Better a sweet floretted fragrance that must be renewed than a violent one that gives you little pleasure.

Should it happen that you have to keep a weather eye on the good looks budget, you console yourself with toiler water which is less expensive and can be used as invishly, as you desire. Reep it in an atomiser. Spray your chest, arms and shoulders after your bath, then driction the flesh briskly. You will walk in an entiding adour all the day long.

A fragrance that can be used as a bath oil and for a perfuma as well in a practical idea. In your bath, it's refreshing; as a perfume it lingers and lingers.

MS Renown left Plymouth on November 12, 1948, carrying the Prime Minister and his staff on their way to the conferences at Cairo and Teheran. The original plan was to sail to Gibraltar and then fly to Cairo, but the weather at Gib. was bad so we steamed on to Malta.

Here there was a delay because the American Secret Service men who had been sent ahead to Teheran were not satisfled with security arrangements there.

It was suggested that the conference be held at Malta, but I understand Stalin would not agree. So we sailed on to Egypt, where the military had taken me alone. over the Menn Hotel and a number of villas for the con-Sentries with fixed bayonets were posted everywhere.

Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kni-shek arrived, and Mr Churchill visited their villa. President Roosevelt was due in the next morning, and when the Prime Minister heard that he had not arrived on time, he became agitated.

He told me to ask for news. By the time I returned I heard that Mr Roosevelt, who had been delayed, had just landed safely at the serodrome. I told Winston and he said: 'Thank God for that, Thompson. I am very relieved."

Churchill was the "prime mover," going continually from one villa to the other. On the day before the Generalissimo was due to go, they all came out for a photograph in the garden of Mr Roosevelt's villa.

Spool & String Puzzle

By MILDRED L. KING

DRESENT your friends with mysterious apparatus illustrated here and ask them to get the two reels on one loop of string. They'll hate to give up and ask for your help but they'll probably have to.

The apparatus is made from a strip of stiff cardboard about three by 12 inches. Three holes are cut in it as shown. These must be considerably smaller than the size of the spools. Thread the string through the holes and the spools on the string as pictured in the dia-

Nevertheless, South put up the ace of blubs, refusing the finesee. He saw that he could eventually try a finesse of dummy's ten of apades for the twelfth trick - and bne finesse was as good as another. .In the meantime, the juck of diamonds might drop; or perhaps somebody would be squeezed.

South's reasoning was quite proper. The spade finesse would have worked, if needed, and the club finesse would have lost. As it happened, however, no finesse was needed, since West was squeezed.

After taking the acc of clubs, South cashed the queen and jack

South got back to his hand with the queen of spindes to lead the queen_of_diamonds...lie, hoped that the jack would fall, but it didn't.

However, East find been forced to aliandon his clubs and ont spade in order to save the diamonds. West had to distord on this diamond; and, since he couldn't afford to release the king of clubs, had to part with a spade.

This toki South that all the spaties would drop, so he just took the top spades and made the fulmiling trick with the ten spades.

INTELLIGENCE TEST SOLUTION:

It is quite easy to solve this Test mean of 4 m.p.h. and 12 m.p.h.; if it is assumed that these are flustier's walking and cycling speeds. Breakaway's speeds will be m.p.h. and the harmonic mean of these is 8.4 m ph But the formal solution is not so simple. If H's two speeds are m m.p.h. and n m.p.h., we have: $\left(\frac{1}{m} + \frac{1}{n}\right)/2 = \frac{1}{6}$ i.e., $m = \frac{6n}{2n-6}$ Now B's two speeds become $\frac{(m+2)}{n}$ and $\frac{(n+2)}{n}$ m.p.h., and we $\left(\frac{1}{m+2} + \frac{1}{n+2}\right) / 2 = \frac{5}{42}$ " i.e., m -----10n-22 6n 22n+128

COLLISION THEORY

London, June 15. A Royal Navy expert said tonight he believed that some accident sent her to the English Channel. On board the submarine 75 officers and men were entombed The theory that an accident occurred at the end of the Affray's underwater journey was put forward by Captain R. S. Foster-Brown, officer in charge of the search forces which located the submarine yesterday after 69 days' ceaseless effort. The possibility of a collision had not been ruled out, he said The nature of the disaster. which struck perhaps only minutes before the Affray was due to break surface on that cold April morning may never be known.

Captain Foster-Brown, exnmining preliminary reports by naval divers, said: "It is by no means certain that we can raise her".

The Affray's position on the seabed could 'hardly' be more treacherous. She lies only a few hundred yards from the brink of Hurds Deep, a 70mile, long underwater ravine with black depths of over 500 Hurds Deep has been used as a dumping ground for old ammunition and explosives. Captain Foster-Brown lieved that the spot where the submarine had been found was the one where the accident had nappened.

Diving reports so far gave no indication of any tamage suffered. It would be very difficult for a fiver to get inside the Affray, Captain Foster-Brown said.—Reuter.
